KENOSHA SYSTEM TO RAISE ONE FUND TO PAY ALL DRIVES, STARTED TUESDAY.

ALL MUST CONTRIBUTE

First Day's Results Are Beyond the Expectations of the Originators, Who Are Delighted.

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 30.—"The Kenosha plan" for raising funds for war relief purposes is in full swing and its success is assured. Every earner, whether he has a job or not, is having, or will have, his part of the plan in it and the aggregate result will be a fund to pay for the war relief drives. The plan was started Tuesday morning at the head of the city by the United States.

"Kenosha's largest industry, the Kenosha Manufacturing company, has been the first to sign up within an hour of the plan's start," said M. S. Moss, general chairman of the city committee. "Only four of the city's employers failed to sign the pledge in the first canvass and two of the four were mere boys."

"The men themselves have a way of uniting action in cases where they expect the best results," said Moss. "In the case of a factory employing 243 men, nearly all of foreign birth, one man refused to sign and his fellow workers went to the superintendent and asked him to sign for them, saying they refused to work at the same bench with him. He signed—said he hadn't understood what was wanted."

"It means something to the salaried men to keep up with these men. Take the case of a man with a salary of $6,000. It means that he will have to let loose of $350 or $400 in order to be on a parity with the wage earners. They're coming in, and coming in for more than the equivalent of one-half hour a week. Some of the labor unions, too, have voted one hour of the week for this fund instead of the half hour asked."

"The wage earner in signing his pledge card authorizes his employer to hold back a half hour's pay each week for the fund and the employer in turn gives an order on the bank for the amount of his weekly subscription when signing. In this way the collection of the fund is greatly simplified."

"The Kenosha plan" as it is known throughout the country, has attracted the widest attention among 200 registered cities. The plan was first proposed by Secretary Kaiser's desk Wednesday and while he explained it Wednesday a telegram arrived from Fort Dodge, Ia., requesting details. In the pile, too, was a personal letter from William G. McAdoo, secretary of the United States treasury, in which the secretary urged the plan for work done in the second Liberty loan in Kenosha.

Farmers Are Enthusiastic. The city is in this, having and out. The farmer, instead of being called a slacker and berated for indifference, this morning lives with the city and the newspapers have been talking the war at you morning and night—so we've come to tell you about it.

Report Conditions In Russia Still in An Unsettled State

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Conditions in Russia apparently remain greatly unsettled. It is reported that the government has given away to a socialist coalition cabinet which the Bolsheviks are represented. On the various war front there has been little change. The British are pressing forward toward Cambrai and a slight advance west of Bourlon. Heavy artillery activity continues in the Ypres sector.

No infantry action of importance are reported from the Italian front but the opposing cannons are very busy. Berlin reports the repulse of Italian attack against position west of the Brenta and west of the Piave.

Much discussion has been provoked in England by the publication of a letter from the Marquis of Lansdown, a veteran political leader. He pleads for a decision of the war aims of the allies and an attempt to obtain peace before the war leads to the ruin of the civilized world.

The letter has caused such a sensation that it is understood it will be the subject of debate in the British house of commons early next week. Instead of this, every man, woman or child in Kenosha who can be considered a producer is asked to give one-half hour a week, or its equivalent, to a war relief fund. The plan has been put up to the employers by their men in some such way as this: "If we do so, and so will you do this and so."

In every case the employer has agreed to meet the total of the sum pledged by the employees, whether clerks or factory hands. When the whole plan was put on a Wednesday morning at 11:30 the employer knows he has stopped working for himself and digs in the harder for the boys in the trenches over there. He feels that he is doing his bit and doing it directly.

SON IS NOT DEAD.
[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Oshkosh, Nov. 30.—Instead of being dead as reported Frank J. Davis of this city is decidedly alive and well and is serving in the U. S. navy. It appears that he had been reported dead in the event of his death she would receive the equivalent of six months of his pay. A short time ago she received notice that her husband had been reported dead. She believed that the notice meant that he was dead. She had a letter from him, however, which showed that he is serving on one of the U. S. gunboats.

TO PROSECUTE DEALERS.
Madison, Nov. 30.—Prosecution of all dealers who sell fruit or other damaged potatoes to housewives is urged by George J. Weigle, state dairy and food commissioner. He has started a campaign to educate people of the state to take action in all cases where fraud in the sale of potatoes is suspected, as he believes that is one way to eliminate waste resulting from the purchase of damaged tubers.

HAS LENINE LOST POWER IN RUSSIA?

DISPATCHES INDICATE THAT THE BOLSHEVIKI HAD BEEN FORCED TO QUIT OFFICE.

END OF BOLSHEVIKI?

Just What This Would Presage Would Be Hard to Estimate at the Present Time With Negotiations Pending With Germany.

Dispatches from both the Associated Press and the International News Service today announce the fall of the Lenin government in Petrograd and the formation of a new government. Dispatches also indicate that Kerensky has fled to Finland. Nothing is said, however, of the advance of the army under Kaledin, the Cossack general.

The Associated Press Report. London, Nov. 30.—The government of Nicholas Lenin has fallen according to Petrograd dispatches received here Wednesday. It has been succeeded by a coalition cabinet of advanced socialists in which, however, the Bolsheviks were represented.

Stockholm, Nov. 30.—A coalition government containing socialists, social revolutionaries, maximalists and moderate bolsheviks is being formed in Petrograd according to information from Haparanda today. The foregoing dispatch said nothing of the fate of the "Bolshevik" government, but indicated that it had collapsed or else had voluntarily retired from power.

Send Warnings.
[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
London, Nov. 30.—The diplomats representing the European allies have sent a note to the Bolshevik government declaring that Russia will violate no solemn treaties with them if she makes a separate peace with Germany, according to advices from Stockholm today. The diplomats are also warning the Bolsheviks that the foregoing is in line with the recent statement of Lord Robert Cecil in the House of Commons in London, stating that the allies were considering the signing of a warning note to Russia against making a separate peace with Germany. It is the first time that the allies have recognized the Bolshevik regime in the light of the government.

BERLIN NOW READY FOR RUSS PEACE

HOWEVER, WANTS DELEGATES FROM PETROGRAD TO HAVE FULL AUTHORITY TO ACT AND CONCLUDE ARRANGEMENTS.

GERMANY IS ARROGANT

German Premier Talks as Though He Believed a Russian Peace Would End the World Struggle—Austria Willing to Quit.

Berlin, (via Wireless Press, Nov. 30).—The war situation was reviewed before the Reichstag today by Count George P. Von Hertling, the new imperial German chancellor. He declared Germany was ready to enter peace negotiations as soon as the Russian government representatives were having full power to Berlin. The chancellor said he hoped and wished the present efforts would take definite shape and "bring us peace."

Praises Germany. German arms, the chancellor said, have been successful and the submarine warfare will reach the aim intended for it. He said the allies sunk will exceed those which are newly constructed. He praised the army and navy and eulogized the home population for patience and endurance and great privations. Political reform will be carried out, but the fundamental principles of the imperial constitution cannot and will not be changed.

Reichstag Crowded. The reichstag was packed when he began his speech. The new state secretary, the new Prussian minister, the new Bavarian premier, the new members of the outgoing German houses, Austrian, Turkish and Bulgarian ambassadors, and all the neutral ministers were present. He opened his speech after referring to his assumption of office by asking loyal co-operation of the reichstag.

Claims Victory. "We are approaching the end of the war which has been full of far-reaching and decisive events in many theatres of the war. I am proud and thankful to say the armies of Germany and her allies have been successful everywhere," he said.

Amsterdam, Nov. 30.—The Austro-Hungarian movement, according to dispatches from Vienna, sent an official reply accepting the Russian government wireless proposal to war negotiations for an armistice and general peace treaty.

FIRM STAND BEING MADE NEAR PIAVE

ITALIANS, AIDED BY BRITISH AND FRENCH TROOPS, ARE POUNDING FIFTEEN MILE GERMAN LINE.

ITALIANS MAKE ATTACK

Report Heavy Artillery Duels Around Monte Grappa and Along the Piave River—Battle is a Deadlock.

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Rome, Nov. 30.—The fifteen mile German line between the Brenta and Piave valleys in the Venetian Alps, the anvil upon which Italian, British and French troops are now pounding with sledge hammer strokes. Even the knowledge that the Austro-German drive into Italy is a "Hindenburg offensive" planned and directed by the old German warrior himself, is not enough to inspire the Teutons to successful assaults.

Heavy Artillery. Dispatches from the front today told of heavy artillery duels around Monte Grappa and Monte Tomba, and all along the Piave river from Quero to the Adriatic.

On the Asiago plateau the Italians delivered a number of sharp attacks, dislodging the Germans from some of their advanced positions. The battle of the Piave, which opened on November 13, has come to a deadlock and today there were no signs that it would be broken soon.

Officers From East Front. According to information secured from prisoners taken by the army groups in the invading army are commanded by Austro-Hungarian soldiers, and many of the officers were called from the eastern front. One army group, the only German army group, was commanded by General von Mackensen, who won fame under von Hindenburg in Galicia. Another is General Krobantin, who fought in Rumania. On Bukovina, the only German army group, according to this information, all however, are under von Hindenburg.

HUN DEFENSES NEAR CAMBRAI SHATTERED BY ENGLISH CANNON
[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
London, Nov. 30.—Hundreds of British cannon, massed along a 12-mile strip of front between Inchy and Creve Coeur, are raking the German defenses of Cambrai with a never ending storm of steel.

French lines, redoubts, dugouts, blockhouses, pillboxes and all forms of German defenses are being battered day and night by the British guns. Great howitzers—wide mouthed, squat and ponderous—have been moved up as close to the front as deemed safe.

Engineers with a big army of workmen followed in the wake of the British when they launched their drive in front of Cambrai on November 20, and highways and railroads were constructed as rapidly as the British lines were extended. This enabled General Byng to move up his artillery and get great quantities of ammunition almost as rapidly.

There was a renewal of infantry fighting in the region of Bourlon, three miles west of Cambrai. During a lull in the bombardment in that sector the British attacked the German position and captured some prisoners.

American Engineers Played Part Rights In Breaking Lines

British army headquarters in France, Nov. 30.—American engineers, the first American troops to be engaged in military operations on the western front, took a prominent part in the breaking of the Hindenburg line.

General Byng's forces just west. Military necessity has made it impossible to speak of their presence before, but it is now possible to inform the people of the United States that the members of the American army had a large part in pushing up the vital railroad behind the advancing British soldiers.

As a matter of fact the American engineers have been laboring on the road through the devastated battle field of the Somme district for nearly four months and the work they have done was the first American casualties announced from Washington.

The speed with which the tracks have been laid up through the broken landscape and the fact that in the week has called forth the highest praise from British authorities. The Americans have been working in shifts of twenty-four hours a day, and such amount of working has been done in this region in so short a time before. The manner in which they stood up under the strain has led to their being dubbed "force of American athletes."

These soldiers are today as willing as they were before the battle began. Naturally the Americans have for some time been working under the strain of the war and more than once they have come under heavy shell fire. One of the most striking sights along the front was that of the engineer laboring coolly at the railroad tracks while the enemy's sniping not one hundred yards away.

GERMANS RECOGNIZE THE GREAT VALUE OF ARTILLERY ATTACKS
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
French Front, Nov. 30.—The entente armies have not been alone in recognizing the greater value of artillery in the modern war. The German army has now adopted the same method of warfare in operation on all the European fronts since the cessation of the war of movement at the end of 1914.

A glance at the strength of the German artillery branch at the opening of hostilities shows that it then consisted of 642 batteries. At present it is composed of 2,000 batteries at least. As the batteries now contain only 10 pieces of artillery, six at the beginning of the war, the calculation of the power of the artillery in the field must be based on the number of guns rather than on the number of batteries.

Whereas in 1914 the German army possessed only 3,852 field guns it now disposes of 8,000 if the minimum figure of 2,000 batteries with which it was furnished at the end of 1914 is taken as the basis of calculation.

These field artillery batteries are divided into two kinds—those armed with the 77-centimeter gun and those with the 105-centimeter gun. The 105-centimeter gun has been much improved and its range greatly increased since 1914.

As the German heavy artillery has increased in the number of pieces has been even greater in proportion than that of the field artillery. In peace time the German army had 100 heavy artillery pieces. Each regiment was composed of two battalions of four batteries, and each battery was armed with four guns, thus totaling 768 heavy artillery pieces.

EVERY UNIT HAS TROOPS IN TRAINING

OFFICIAL REPORT STATES THAT FIRST OF GREAT NATIONAL GUARD ARMY HAS SAFELY REACHED FRANCE.

REACH FRANCE SAFELY

Either Entire Regiments or Parts of Regiments From Every State in the Union Represented in the Training Camps.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
With the American Army in France, Nov. 30.—National guard men from every state of the union have arrived at France in the last few days. They are among the troops now training and lately arrived.

While it is not permitted to disclose the identity of the units it may be said that all those which sailed from the United States have arrived safely and some are in training within sound of the guns on the battle front. They are showing a spirit in keeping with the purpose of all concerned to make the American expeditionary force a homogeneous American army, in which each division whether national guards or national army cannot be distinguished in efficiency from any other. The former state troops are billeted over a wide area and are pronounced excellent soldiers.

Many Arrivals. The guardsmen have been arriving in the American zone for many weeks. They are scattered somewhat but as nearly as possible the units from the same state have been kept close together except in one case. They found the regular army had made good preparation for them and while some men are billeted in houses in French towns others were quartered in low wooden barracks, especially erected for them.

The troops from various states have been reorganized and have been welcomed enthusiastically. Many units on arriving in the "Big Red" of the French red, white and blue cockade pinned to their campaign hats. These were given the soldiers when they landed. After sufficient time to rest from the journey which in some cases has been extremely tiresome the troops have been set to work training for service at the front. In all quarters there are men of the most enthusiastic and soldier qualities have drawn high praise from the French instructors.

Hard at Work. During the last few days one unit has been working with grenade and automatic rifles while another has been working out military problems in maneuvers. Another unit is in the instruction trenches and is being drilled as near as possible to actual fighting conditions. Many former guardsmen have heard gun roaring in the distance. All are given the best of course instruction the first contingent has undergone.

The guardsmen are all in good health. The reason why it is not permitted to mention units by name is that if one is mentioned the way is opened to mention all others which means the revealing of identity of numbers and other information which is important to the enemy.

Thus far the information for the relatives and families of the men is everyone who sailed from the United States has arrived safely in France.

REV. C. E. EWING GAVE APPROPRIATE SERMON

The Union Thanksgiving Service Was Held at the Christian Church Thursday.

A strong, vigorous sermon, especially appropriate to the times, was preached by the Rev. C. E. Ewing in the Union Thanksgiving service held at the Christian church Thursday morning. The Christian church is around about him, and the general thought of the course was that God was behind the clouds. He enumerated a few things which we as a people had to be thankful for at this time, in spite of the clouds of war. Some of these were: That America had kept out of the war; that God was behind the clouds; that we as a people had to be thankful for the splendid loyalty and enthusiasm of our soldiers; for the special training and discipline which they are receiving to make them fit and for the moral and religious influences surrounding them at this time. In this connection he read a selection from a letter received from one of our boys at Vaco, telling of his experiences while there. We could be thankful also, said the speaker, for the discipline that the nation was undergoing at this time. We were thankful for the full blaze of God's glory. Through the clouds we could get glimpses of God's light, and his great and loving kindness was the silver lining to the heavy clouds of war. We could be thankful also at the time for the promises of friendship and harmony in the future in the Union of Nations.

Through the League to Enforce Peace there was a medium of national stability, but in the union there was a hint of unity far beyond the advantages to be derived from peace. There was the positive and constructive work, which will go on until it included all the nations of the world. There is evidence also, of a strong union in our home nation. There is a probability of doing away in a large measure with class distinctions, for the war has compelled us to work together at this time. Perhaps we can keep on working together. Harmony may solve many racial problems. The Christian should not wait, but should do it readily and cheerfully as part of the Christian's duty. The speaker closed by predicting a great future for the nation as an outcome of the war. There is a great promise, he said, in the plans for the great future before us, when the Kingdom of Heaven shall come upon the earth, when right and justice shall be recognized as vital principles and shall control in a large degree the nations of the earth. The music of the occasion was led by Philip Bauer, who sang, "The Home Front Spangled Banner," and the audience joining in the chorus.

TWO WEDDINGS ON THANKSGIVING DAY

Genevieve Elizabeth Whetstone Weds Ira Fuzzell—Florence Parker Married to Harold Jones.

Two weddings of Janesville young people were celebrated on Thanksgiving day. Miss Genevieve Elizabeth Whetstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Whetstone, of 306 North Academy street, was married to Mr. Ira Fuzzell, of 1107 W. 21st street, where the ceremony was performed Thursday morning at eight-thirty at the Baptist church parsonage. Rev. Edith McWilliam was matron of honor and Francis Connors was best man. The bride was dressed in a tulle and lace suit, trimmed with fur, and a crown of pink and white flowers. She carried a bouquet of violets and roses. Mr. and Mrs. Fuzzell left on the nine-thirty train for Chicago. They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fuzzell's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Peterson of Maywood, where a reception was held in their honor. Any Player-Piano Will "Play"—But the Question Is HOW WILL IT PLAY?

People are demanding more in a player-piano than they ever did. They want a player-piano that will enable them, easily and simply, to get good, natural-sounding music; music that sounds as if it were being played by hand.

To get all that, means to get a player-piano that will give simple, natural expression to its music; and give it at command; simply and easily. In this respect the wonderful

The name SCHULZ on a player-piano means the same; means a piano such as Schulz has always made—the best that can be made; and a player designed and constructed entirely in the Schulz factories, after Schulz ideas; an original player and a perfected player.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Nov. 30.—There was a great attendance at the football game held here yesterday afternoon between local players for the benefit of Company K. It was a good affair to watch being the best game played here in the season. When the teams lined up it looked as if the condensation boys would win easily, their line being heavier and the back field was made up of former stars. But the Coxes team was snappy and with good generalship won the game in the third quarter by a wonderful march down the field, line plays being most used, for a touchdown. Goal was missed and the score was 6 to 0, a lead the condensation boys could not overcome. Near the end of the third quarter the condensation boys went for the kick-off to the twenty yard line on an end run by Gray and a forward pass and run by same man but with the quarter ended and on the change the Coxes team held for downs. The ball was in the Coxes team's territory and the end run was made but they were able to keep it from crossing the line.

DUTCH WORKMEN EARN GOOD WAGES IN FACTORIES

(By Associated Press.)

Amsterdam, Netherlands, Nov. 30.—In many districts on the Dutch-German border line there is a steady outflow every morning of Dutch workmen, women and girls across the frontier. They go out for the day to work at high wages in German factories just over on the German side. In the evening a return tide sets in of hungry crowds, for the Dutch factory hands find eager purchasers for the contents of their dinner pails.

Despite careful watching by the Dutch frontier guards and police matrons, attempts at smuggling constantly occur. Five hundred persons were convicted of smuggling at the small frontier town of Heerenberg in three weeks.

THE NEXT DRIVE.

Now that Thanksgiving is over and the only serious casualty is the attack, a most successful one, on the Turks in many a household, we must settle down for the next big drive—Christmas. The days are short, and becoming shorter, and it is always the early bird that catches the worm. The choicest of the Christmas gifts this year will be the gifts of the spirit. This is a time for giving and not for receiving. However, our stores will soon be putting on the holiday air and we should not forget the old maxim, "It is better to give than to receive," and follow the doctrine.

The next big drive will be Christmas and then comes the annual yearly settling day, January 1st. Two drives in one but the first is always met first, and then comes the worry of the second. Meanwhile do not forget that "over there" are thousands of our boys who long for a word from home and a post card, if nothing more, will do a whole lot of good. "Down there" in the United States are thousands of others who long for a greeting and a letter will think of them. This is the period of thinking for others, so do not forget those boys in khaki who think of you and all other friends.

However, Thanksgiving is over and we must meet the next drive like heroes and be prepared for the worst. Take time by the forelock and do your shopping early. Buy what you want, but do not waste. This is the age of conservation and you will find the Christmas selections have been picked out with this thought in mind. These are war times and while we may not realize it, war times will be with us for several Christmases to come, unless something unusual happens.

A BELGIAN ATROCITY.

"Among the many surprises of the war is the discovery of a German officer in Central Africa who seems to have most of the attributes, doubtless from association with self-respecting savages, of a human being. On the part that Belgians were committing unnameable outrages upon Germans in Africa, the German governors of Belgium recently deported a number of Belgians, including men of high social position of sixty-seven and even seventy years of age," says an exchange.

"But this German officer, Captain Otto Weber, governor of the district of Tabora, where the atrocities occurred, furnishes particulars with a simplicity and directness which compels belief. Here is his statement:

"Personally, I have no complaint to make of the Belgian troops," he says in his written declaration, on their entry into Tabora. However, as chief of the district, I have to say that the complaints were made to me on the subject of the Belgian troops at Tabora, and I have taken personal cognizance of the damage done in the house of Mrs. Horn. I was also told that a butcher shop had been plundered by Italians on the day the Belgians entered Tabora, but I have not been able to verify this statement. At another house the awning outside had been torn by bayonets. I am not able to say positively that the deeds to which my attention has been called were brought to the attention of General Tombeau (the Belgian commanding officer) by Mr. Brandes; at the end of two days everything was calm again."—New York Tribune.

"A horrified world will readily see that the destruction of an awning outside a German grocery store in Central Africa warrants the deportation to slavery of unlimited Belgians, and the amputation of a little girl's hands for 'making faces' at a German officer, which Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, who saw the victim, describes.

"But the atrocity which will rouse the indignation of the world is the treatment of the German prisoners in Central Africa by the Belgians who captured them. These prisoners were actually committed to the German jail. It is true that the German regulations in that jail were so inhuman that they were forthwith modified by the Belgians. But it must be obvious that an 'outrage' upon a German, of whatever character, partakes not merely of cruelty, but of sacrilege. The world is to be shown, in fact, that it is a capital offense to 'make faces' at the German superman."

VULTURES OF WAR.

The best and the worst of human nature shows up in war. While the boys are suffering and sacrificing, the vultures of life are trying to prey on them and make them money on their misery. Around every army cantonment are the low sneaks that are trying to tempt them to vice. Furtive sellers of liquor are preying on them and painted faced women are trying to lure them.

The boys will be largely proof against these sinister temptations. But one must remember the active and pent up young blood in these camps. Even when physically tired, their active minds and bodies crave diversion. They demand outlet and will be roaming the neighborhood ready for adventure.

To young men of slight experience, the appeal of vice will appear quite plausible and harmless. No evil result is apparent from drink that the pocket peddler furtively produces. A flirtation with the painted girl may seem nothing but pure fun. But one stop leads to another, and soon our young innocent is led on to a bad habit or some vicious relation. The results will sooner or later affect the soldier's fighting power and may darken his life.

The government and the army officers understand the situation perfectly. They are doing their best to keep a clean and decent and orderly area around these cantonments. But active young men can't be tied up like so many pet animals. They must have some fling. If there is trouble of this kind around these camps it will be due to failure of local sentiment to co-operate with the army authorities. This protection can be given if penalties are meted out in accordance with desert. The vultures that surround the camps should not be left off with trifling sentences. They should get the limit, so that they will betake themselves to locations where punishment is less certain and drastic.

The Germans don't find submarining quite so much fun against destroyers as it was when all they had to do was to fire torpedoes at defenseless passenger ships carrying women and children.

The congressmen who will oppose appropriations for munitions for our soldiers will not probably be the same ones who were recently exposed to shell fire while inspecting trenches.

It is suggested that the sweet tooth of the people of Rock county eat only half a pound of candy a day so that the boys in the trenches can have a spoonful for their coffee.

Congress will soon be meeting, each party prepared to seize all the glory of the successes and lay off the failures on the wicked representatives of the opposition.

German-American citizens who complain of being boycotted can protect themselves by the simple expedient of taking hold loyally to help the government.

Meat prices have increased 97 per cent over two years ago, but the ordinary customer can occasionally afford pieces of the horns, hoof and tail.

There are still some people who will go to a butcher shop and pay fifty cents a pound for the privilege of exercising their jaws on a piece of rubber.

It's about time in this war for the pitcher and catcher and bench manager and field captain to get together and agree on a few signals.

Former Ambassador Gerard favors hanging every traitor to a lamp post, but probably he would not object to a tree in a rural district.

Some people's idea of getting popular rights is to strike and tie up the war against the rulers who are enslaving human rights.

The Germans will never beat our boys in battle, but their emissaries will sell rum to them and tempt them into enfeebling vices.

It is denied that Germany is bankrupt, as she never promises to pay her debts.

TWO LOCAL CONCERNS INCREASE CAPACITY

Janesville Shirt and Overall Co., and Rock River Woolen Mills Will Have Enlarged Quarters

With the lease of the entire building of the old Rock River Cotton Co., on Franklin Street, to the Janesville Shirt and Overall Co., and the sublease of the lower floor of the building to the Rock River Woolen Mills by the Overall Company, an added impetus to manufacturing is given these firms. The building is a three story structure, fifty-one by two hundred feet. The Janesville Shirt and Overall company will occupy the two top floors after January first, and the entire lower floor will be utilized by the Rock River Woolen Mills, whose capacity at their present plant is unable to care for the increased amount of business, and new machinery will be installed in the Franklin street building, calling for additional employees of some fifty hands. This will bring up the number of employees of the Woolen company to a hundred and fifty hands, and the Overall company to increase their output and use more employees. Later it is understood the Woolen Mills plan to erect a large addition to their present plant at the lower dam.

"THE TIDAL WAVE"

A PRETTY PLAY

Dramatization of Saturday Evening Post Story at Myers Theatre.

Wednesday Evening, Plays to Small House.

Perhaps because of the comparatively short notice, only two days, there was but a small audience on hand to witness the musical drama.

"The Tidal Wave," by Boyd Hutchinson, at the Myers theatre, Wednesday evening.

The play was very pretty, and abounded in beautiful scenic effects.

The melodious Hawaiian singing and instrumental music was very good indeed, as was the native dancing.

It really deserved a larger audience.

Song Recital

Philip E. Baer, tenor, assisted by his pupils and the Lyric Male Quartet, will give a vocal concert Tuesday night, December 4, in the First Christian church, corner of Academy and W. Milwaukee streets. His favorite piece will be sung. Concert is free. Silver collection will be taken. Come early to procure a seat.

Fire Scare: A house filled with smoke caused by a defective oil stove necessitated a trip by the fire department to the home of Byron R. Codman, 207 North Bluff street at nine-thirty this morning. No damage was done.

When you think of Insurance, think of C. P. Beers. Adv.

Put Outside the Law. The strangest punishment which still survives in Great Britain under modern law is that of "outlawry." About ten years ago a lawyer charged with forging a check was "outlawed" in the Glasgow high court. By this sentence the person of the accused is declared forfeit. He cannot bear testimony in a court, nor sue, nor defend an action. He cannot act on a jury, nor vote at an election, nor act as tutor or guardian to another person. If anyone robs him he has no redress.

Everybody reads the classified page. Therefore if you have anything to sell use that page and note how quickly you get results.

STIFF SENTENCE IS GIVEN BACON THIEF

Judge Maxfield Gives Eight Months' Sentence to Frank Rolik, Boy Held on Statutory Charge.

Frank Rolik, the man who "copped the bacon" from Metzinger's meat house some time ago, was sentenced by Judge Maxfield in municipal court this morning to eight months in the county jail. Rolik entered a plea of guilty to the charge, but claimed he was intoxicated at the time of the theft. He admitted that he took about a hundred pounds of bacon and went to sell it to a local restaurant. He gave Chicago as his home and said he had a seventeen year old son working there.

Clifford Adams, a local youth of seventeen years, was arrested Wednesday afternoon on complaint of Madge Peabody. His case, which is a serious statutory charge, was set for December 8th.

The usual bunch of holiday drunkards were all given stiff sentences by Judge Maxfield, four of them pleading guilty to the charge. Jim Jeffers, who gave Sharon as his home, was given a thirty day term in the county jail and was ordered to leave town when he had completed his sentence.

John Disch of Monticello, a repeater, was given his choice of the same sentence or a fine of $25. He chose the jail sentence. Disch claimed that he owned an auto and that he had left it somewhere on Milwaukee at the front. It was discovered by the police this morning on South Main street near Sharon street.

Ed. Hanson, a farmer living north of the city, and whose farm is very familiar to the local police, thought he would rather visit for thirty days at the county jail than pay a fine of $25.

John Anderson, who imbibed from his Thanksgiving day was handed the same sentence and did likewise.

SALVATION ARMY IS TO HOLD TAG DAY

The Salvation Army is having a tag day tomorrow to raise money or ambulances and huts for their work among the American boys at the front. The American boys at the front are the English and French about fifty ambulances and four hundred huts and hotels, and over six hundred Salvation Army officers to look after the spiritual welfare of the men.

They are sending the American soldiers ambulances, and building huts as fast as the demands call for, and have sent over nineteen ambulances and about twenty-seven Salvation Army officers, and want to make the number five hundred. They hold services, and at other times the huts are used for reading, writing and conversation. Some of the most talented Salvation Army officers are working among the troops in France, and the girl officers mend the soldiers' clothes and sew on buttons and try to make it as home like for the boys as they can, and best of all, in their hour of need the sick and dying are pointed to the man of Galilee who suffered for their redemption. The appeal is made to those who are blessed with this world's goods, give the Salvation army their aid. They would like as many girls as they can get to help them tomorrow to tag. Meet at the Salvation Army hall, 101 North Main street, at 10:00 a. m.

News Notes from Movieland

As a child Louise Glaum, now one of the most famous vampires of screen, often showed her thoughts to turn to poetic fancies. Often she would assemble the children of the neighborhood and enact plays which she devised from her own imagination until her parents, realizing she intended to make this her life work, objected strongly. Now, however, they are extremely proud of her rise to fame, although the day of the vampire is believed to be past.

COUNTRY CLUB PARTY
DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

One of the Most Successful Dances in History of Club Given in Terpsichorean Hall Last Evening.

With Woodworth's four-piece orchestra of Chicago furnishing wonderful music, eighty couples danced last evening in Terpsichorean hall at the annual ball of the Country Club. The orchestra, which played the past summer at Woodlawn Bay hotel at Delavan lake, was the big hit of the evening.

During the evening light refreshments were served and the affair closed at one o'clock. The fact that the party was informal this year did not seem to detract from the success of the occasion and to the committee in charge belongs much credit. George King, as chairman of the committee, is responsible for one of the best parties in the club's history.

TRAINMEN'S DANCE IS GREAT SUCCESS

Two Hundred and Fifty Couples Dance From Nine to Three to Excellent Music of Hatch's Orchestra.

Two hundred and fifty couples enjoyed the thirty-second annual ball given by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Rock River Lodge No. 210, in Assembly hall, Thanksgiving eve.

The dance proved to be one of the most successful in the history of the local lodge and much credit is due the committee in charge.

Hatch's seven-piece orchestra was at its best and enlivened the occasion to a considerable extent. American flags and emblems of the allies furnished the decorations and a part of the proceeds was turned over to the Christmas fund for soldiers. Dancing was in order until three o'clock yesterday morning and over a hundred couples left regretfully when "Home, Sweet Home" was played.

The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of J. J. Dulin, chairman; F. J. Dixon, and D. P. Davey. The reception committee was made up of Thos. Murphy, chairman; J. S. Dempsey, James Mulligan, W. R. Pickett, W. E. Nolan and Edw. Belts. Floor managers for the evening were: J. D. Horn, chairman; Geo. Barry, J. D. Horn, M. J. Coe, R. D. John Brown, M. J. Carroll, J. J. Dulin, Jr., James Conley and John Behrendt.

OILED EARTH ROADS.

Do Not Require So Much Drugging as the Ordinary Dirt Roads.

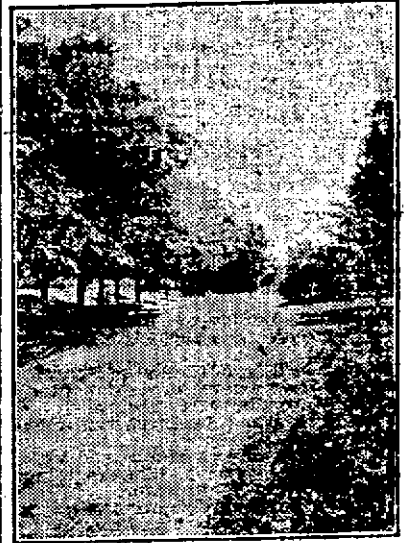

Oiled earth roads should not be regarded as a permanent improvement, but are much better than common earth roads, in the opinion of W. S. Gearhart, state highway engineer of Kansas.

"Oiled roads do not require so much dragging as ordinary earth roads," says Professor Gearhart. "They shed water better and do not become so dusty. Although oiled roads are not so satisfactory as gravel roads, they may be a help in developing good roads sentiment."

The best results from oiling are to be obtained by applying the oil when the road is hard, smooth, dustless and without any ruts or potholes, according to Professor Gearhart.

Where there is a pocket in the road water will gather after every storm. Oil works better on sandy soils than on clay or heavy loams. Loam soils may be helped by sprinkling a light coating of sand over the oiled surface.

For the first application half a gallon of oil containing from 40 to 60 per cent

asphalt is sufficient for each square yard of road surface. Usually a strip sixteen feet wide is oiled, and at the rate of 3 cents a square yard—all expenses included—it will cost a little more than $250 a mile.

After the first year it is better to apply from one-quarter to one-third of a gallon of oil to each square yard of surface in the spring and the same amount again in the fall.

For jarring the dust on city streets oiling may be as economical and more satisfactory than water, particularly if the soil is sandy. When city streets are oiled it is best to cover the crosswalks with dust or dirt so that they will not be covered with oil. When the oiling process is finished the dust or dirt may be swept away. Surface oiled streets are not satisfactory if the soil is clay or loam, for the oil dust blows about and is carried into buildings and upon walks.

MILITARY ROADS NEEDED.

Connecting Highways Permanent in All Weathers a National Necessity.

An American army, no matter how large, perfectly trained or well equipped, would be of little value in defending a country of an area as extensive as that of the United States unless adequate provision for its rapid transportation to needed points, together with the vast supplies of food and munitions and other necessary equipment, were assured, says the New York World.

Today the railroads are exerting themselves to the utmost to handle commercial traffic. It is no farfetched supposition that the added burden of military transportation would be the straw to the camel's back. Permanent highways should be available as an alternate and supplement to our railroads.

We have had the military lesson of the good roads that saved France. Motorcars and motor trucks in sufficient numbers are at the call of the government. They are capable of transporting an army with all of its equipment. The one limitation is that of roads. Permanent, durable, all weather roads are a national necessity in this connection. A system of such through connected roads is required.

We have one such road established, but not perfected. It is the Lincoln highway, connecting New York and San Francisco. Its location is such as to make it of first importance at this time. An improved Lincoln highway would be a preparedness asset of untold value to our country.

Influence of the Automobile.

The good influence of the automobile is soon to manifest itself in another phase of road building. The percentage of automobile traffic on country highways that is essentially pleasure seeking is surprisingly great. True, the volume of farm products which are hauled over the roads and the degree to which the highways are becoming the arteries of commerce are on the increase. The fundamental appeal of the automobile, however, will always be the call of the road, the desire to be out in the open. Even when the mission of the motorist is of a business nature the tendency is, whether consciously or not, to travel by the route which combines business with pleasure to the highest degree. With connected systems of improved highways fast becoming a reality throughout the country, the motorist of the future will demand not only that the road be a good road to travel, but that its surroundings be good to look at as well. Especially is this true of the great trunk line routes of the states and the nation.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

THE FRIENDLY GREETING. Oh, we have friends in England, and we have friends in France, and should we have to travel there through some strange circumstance.

Undaunted we should sail away, and gladly should we go.

Because awaiting us would be somebody that we know.

Full many a journey here we make where countless strangers roam. Yet everywhere our faces turn we find a friend from home.

Oh, we have friends in distant towns, and friends in distant foreign skies, and yet we think of him as lost when ever a loved one dies.

Yet he has merely traveled on, as many a friend must do, within a distant city fair he waits for me and you.

And when shall come our time to make that journey through the gloom, To welcome us he will be there, the smiling friend from home.

A LITTLE SLICE OF LIFE.

The other day a fashion journal said that on account of the scarcity of wools.

And other things that go into the manufacture of dress goods, the material in women's gowns.

Must be rationed. The journal said that.

Every time there is a battle in France dress goods become scarcer.

We have rationed along Main street since the war started. We have noted every time there is an important battle in France the skirts have gone up another notch.

Some of the things that were down around the ankles.

When the war started are now up to the knees.

And some of them that started at the knees.

Have become shortened still more.

There have been many important battles.

And if there are many more the average skirt.

LIMA

Lima, Nov. 29.—Word has been received here this morning of the death of Dr. Mary Montgomery, late of Clinton, at her winter home in Florida. The remains will be buried in the village cemetery on Sunday. Dr. Montgomery was a resident of Lima for several years before beginning the practice of medicine.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Collins spent Thanksgiving with Delavan relatives. Eva Gould was so unfortunate as to lose a purse with three dollars in silver in it the first of the week.

Miss Boyles went to Waupaca to spend the week end with her parents.

Jansville School Teacher's Friends Made Glad

One of them had this to say yesterday. "We never thought that poor Ellen would ever recover, she had suffered so long from stomach and liver trouble and had lost more than 40 pounds in weight. She took a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy upon the advice of her aunt and has steadily improved from the first dose. We are all confident of her complete recovery. It is a simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at J. P. Bakers."

Died of Premature Old Age!

(By V. M. Pierce, M. D.)

How many times we hear of comparatively young persons passing away when they should have lived to be 70 or 80 years of age. This fatal work is usually attributed to the kidneys, as, when the kidneys degenerate, it causes auto-intoxication. The more injurious the poisons passing through the kidneys the quicker will those noble organs be degenerated, and the sooner they decay.

It is thus the wisest policy, to prevent premature old age and promote long life, to lighten the work of the kidneys. This can be done by drinking plenty of pure water all day long, and occasionally taking a little Anuric before meals. This can be obtained at almost any drug store. Anuric will overcome such conditions as rheumatism, dropsical swellings, cold extremities, scalding and burning urine and sleeplessness due to constant arising from bed at night.

A Romance of Adventure

CHAPTER XV.

As they disappeared after a scramble through the mouth of the same tunnel they had entered by, a roar went up behind them like the birth of earthquakes. Looking back over his shoulder, King saw Yasmini come back into the hole's mouth, to stand framed in it and how acknowledgment. For the space of five minutes she stood in the great hole, smiling and watching the crowd below. Then she went, and the guards began to loose random volleys at the roof and brought down hundredweights of splintered stalactite.

Within a minute there were a hundred men busy sweeping up the splinters. In another minute twenty Zakka Khels had begun a sword dance, yelling like demons. A hundred joined them. In three minutes more the whole arena was a dancing whirlpool, and the river's voice was drowned in shouting and the stamping of naked

WHAT OUR NEIGHBORS SAY.

Portage, Wis.—"I know Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a good medicine. About six years ago I developed quite a severe case of weakness from which women suffer. I also had a very bad stomach. I got very nervous—was nearly on the verge of nervous prostration. I had doctored for several years but did not get the relief I needed. I began taking the 'Prescription' and two bottles was all I needed to put me in good condition. I have never had any return of these ailments."—Mrs. Anna Scherbert, 1003 Prospect Avenue.

Green Bay, Wis.—"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a splendid medicine. I have used it in my family for many years, for coughs, colds and La Grippe, and it always gives perfect satisfaction. Knowing what it has done for us I can highly recommend it."—Mrs. Ed. Basche, 421 Fifth Street.

"Come!" urged Ismail, and led the way.

King's last impression was of earth's womb on fire and of hellions brewing wrath. The stalactites and the hurrying river multiplied the dancing lights into a million, and the great roof hurled the din down again to make confusion with the new din coming up.

Ismail went like a rat down a run, and it became so dark that King had to follow by ear. He imagined they were running back toward the ledge under the waterfall; yet, when Ismail called a halt at last, panting, groped behind a great rock for a lamp and lit the wick with a common safety match, they were in a cave he had never seen before.

"Where are we?" King asked.

"Where none dare seek us. Art thou afraid?" asked Ismail, holding the lamp to King's face.

"Kuch dar nahin hai!" he answered.

"There is no such thing as fear!"

Suddenly the Afridi blew the lamp out, and then the darkness became solid. Thought itself left off less than a yard away.

"Ismail!" he whispered. But Ismail did not answer him.

He faced about, leaning against the rock, with the flat of both hands pressed tight against it for the sake of its company; and almost at once he saw a little bright red light glowing in the distance. It might have been below him; it was perfectly impossible to judge, for the darkness was not measurable.

"Flowers turn to the light!" droned Ismail's voice above contentiously, and turning, he thought he could see red eyes peering over the rock. He jumped, and made a grab for the flowing beard that surely must be below them, but he missed.

"Little fish swim to the light!" droned Ismail. "Moths fly to the light! Who is a man that he should know less than they?"

He turned again and stared at the light. Dimly, very vaguely he could make out that a causeway led downward from almost where he stood. He was convinced that should he try to climb back Ismail would merely reach out a hand and shove him down again, and there was no sense in being put to that indignity. He decided to go forward, for there was even less sense in standing still. So he stooped to feel the floor with his hand before deciding to go forward. There was no mistaking the finish given by the tread of countless feet. He was on a highway, and there are not often pitfalls where so many feet have been.

For all that he went forward as a certain Agag once did, and it was many minutes before he could see a certain glowing blood-red in the light behind two lamps, at the top of a flight of ten stone steps. When he went quite close he saw carpet down the middle of the steps, so ancient that the stone showed through in places; all the pattern, supposing it ever had any, was worn or faded away. Carpet and steps glowed red too. His own face, and the hands he held in front of him were red-hot-poker color. Yet outside the little ellipse of light the darkness looked like a thing to lean against, and the silence was so intense that he could hear the arteries singing by his ears.

He saw the curtains move slightly, apparently in a little puff of wind that made the lamps waver. Then he walked up the steps and at the top he stooped to examine the lamps.

They were bronze, cast, polished and carved. All round the circumference of each bowl were figures in half-relief, representing a woman dancing. She was the woman of the knife-bill, and of the lamps in the arena! But no two figures of the dance were alike. It was the same woman dancing, but the artist had chosen twenty different poses with which to immortalize his skill, and hers. Both lamps burned sweet oil with a wick, and each had a chimney of horn, not at all unlike a modern lamp chimney. The horn was stained red.

As he set the second lamp down he became aware of a subtle, interesting smell, and memory took him back at once to Yasmini's room in the Chandni Chowk in Delhi where he had smelled it first. It was the peculiar scent he had been told was Yasmini's own—a blend of scents, like a chord of music, in which musk did not predominate.

He took three strides and touched the curtains, discovering now for the first time that there were two of them, divided down the middle. They were of leather, and though they looked old as the "Ellis" themselves, the leather was supple as good cloth.

"Kurram Khan hai!" he announced.

But the echo was the only answer. There was no sound beyond the curtains. With his heart in his mouth he parted them with both hands, startled by the sharp jangle of metal rings on a rod.

So he stood, with arms outstretched, staring—staring—staring—with eyes skilled swiftly to take in details, but with a brain that tried to explain—formed a hundred wild suggestions—and then reeled. He was face to face with the unexplainable—the riddle of Khinjan caves.

The leather curtains slipped through his fingers and closed behind him with the clash of rings on a rod. But he was beyond being startled. He was not really sure he was in the world.

He was not certain whether it was the twentieth century, or 55 B. C., or earlier yet; or whether time had ceased.

The place where he was did not look like a cave, but a palace chamber, for the rock walls had been trimmed square and polished smooth; then they had been painted pure white, except for a wide blue frieze, with a line of gold leaf drawn underneath it. And on the frieze, done in gold-leaf too, was the Grecian lady of the lamps, always dancing. There were fifty or sixty figures of her, no two alike.

A dozen lamps were burning, set in niches cut in the walls at measured intervals. They were exactly like the two outside, except that their horn chimneys were stained yellow instead of red, suffusing everything in a golden glow.

Opposite him was a curtain, rather like that through which he had entered. Near to the curtain was a bed, whose great wooden posts were cracked with age. In spite of its age it was spread with fine new linen.

He looked closer at the fingers for signs of force and suddenly caught his breath. Under the woman's flimsy sleeve was a wrought gold bracelet, smaller than that one he himself had worn in Delhi and up the Khyber. He raised the loose sleeve to look more closely at it, and the movement laid bare another bracelet, on the man's right wrist. Size for size, this was the same as the one that had been stolen from himself.

Memory prompted him. He felt its outer edge with a finger nail. There was the little nick that he had made in the soft gold when he struck it against the cell bars in the jail at the Mir Khan palace! He touched the gold. It was warm. He repeated the test on the woman's wrists. Hers were warm, too. Both bracelets had been worn by a living being within an hour.

He muttered and frowned in thought, and then suddenly jumped backward. The leather curtain near the bed had moved on its bronze rod.

"Aren't they dears?" a voice said in English behind him. "Aren't they sweet?"

Yasmini stood not two arms' lengths away, lovelier than the dead woman because of the merry life in her, young and warm, aglow, but looking like the dead woman and the woman of the frieze—the woman of the lamp-bowls—the statue—come to life, speaking to him in English more sweetly than if it had been her mother tongue. The English abuse their language. Yasmini caressed it and made it do its work twice over.

Being dressed as a native, he saluted low. Knowing him for what he was, she gave him the sena-stained tips of her warm fingers to kiss, and he thought she trembled when he touched them. But a second later she had snatched them away and was treating him to rillery.

"Man of pills and blisters!" she said, "tell me how those bodies are preserved! Spill knowledge from that learned skull of thine!"

He did not answer. He never shone in conversation at any time, having made as many friends as enemies by saying nothing until the spirit moves him. But she did not know that yet.

"If I knew for certain why those two did not turn to worms," she went on, "almost I would choose to die now, while I am beautiful! What would they say, think you, King sahib, if they found us two dead beside those two? Speak, man, speak! Has Khinjan struck you dumb?"

But he did not speak. He was staring at her arm, where two whitish marks on the skin betrayed that bracelets had been.

"Oh, those! They are theirs. would not rob the dead, or the gods would turn on me. I robbed you, instead, while you slept. Fie, King, sahib, while you slept!"

But her steel did not strike on flint. It was her eyes that flashed. He would have done better to have seemed ashamed, for then he might have fooled her, at least for a while. But having judged himself, he did not care a fig for her judgment of him. She realized that instantly and having found a tool that would not work, discarded it for a better one. She drew confidential.

Dinner Stories

A man from the back country in Missouri went to Jefferson City in business, and while there called at a bank to get specie for some notes he had had on hand for a long time. They proved to be a defunct concern, and the cashier told him they were good for nothing.

"Wa'al, now, look a-here, mister," said Uncle Cy, "won't ye jist tell a feller how you can tell when money's a-goin' to spile?"

"Isn't it funny?" said Gladys, curiously, to her chum, Phyllis. "Father has promised to give me a pair of diamond earrings if I will stop havin' music lessons. I wonder why?"

"That's strange!" agreed Phyllis. "But you've never wore earrings, have you?"

"No, I shall have to get my ears pierced."

"That explains it," said Phyllis, an innocent smile curving her ruby lips. "He wants to pay you back in your own coin."

A cashier of somewhat portly build was frowning over a statement of accounts just placed before him by his pretty typist. "As a young lady," he said, "I admire your type, but I honestly say I admire your typewriter!"

"How funny," she replied smartly. "We are so different, for though you are of course splendid at figures, no one could say you have a splendid figure!"

In the privacy of his home the village butcher was telling his wife of the arrival of a new summer resident.

"She came in today," he said with great enthusiasm. "And I can tell you she's a real lady, brought up select and exclusive. She don't know one cut of meat from another, nor veal from mutton."

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a yellow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Too Sick To Work

Many Women in this Condition Regain Health by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Convincing Proof of This Fact

Ridgway, Penn. — "I suffered from female trouble with backache and pain in my side for over seven months so I could not do any of my work. I was treated by three different doctors and was getting discouraged when my sister-in-law told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her. I decided to try it, and it restored my health, so I now do all of my housework which is not light as I have a little boy three years old."

Mrs. Lindsey Now Keeps House For Seven.

Tennille, Ga. — "I want to tell you how much I have benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About eight years ago I got in such a low state of health I was unable to keep house for three in the family. I had dull, tired, dizzy feelings, cold feet and hands nearly all the time and could scarcely sleep at all. The doctor said I had a severe case of ulceration and without an operation I would always be an invalid, but I told him I wanted to wait awhile. Our druggist advised my husband to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has entirely cured me. Now I keep house for seven and work in the garden some, too. I am so thankful I got this medicine. I feel as though it saved my life and have recommended it to others and they have been benefited."

How to Acquire a Relish for the Word

By REV. HOWARD W. POPE
Moody Bible Institute,
Chicago

TEXT—How sweet are thy words unto my taste! Yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth.—Ps. 119:102.

It is a well-known fact that unless one uses the strength derived from his food, in labor or exercise, he soon loses his relish for food altogether.

The contrary, vigorous exercise as a rule creates a hearty appetite. The same principle applies to spiritual things. Unless we give out to others the comfort and inspiration derived from our daily reading of the Bible, we soon lose our interest in it, and find it rather a dull book.

If you reply: "I do not seem to get much inspiration from the Bible. In fact, I doubt if I have gotten a fresh idea from it in a week," let me ask you if you take time to think on what you read. Gold has to be mined, and diamonds are dug from the depths of the earth. In fact, very few of God's best gifts can be obtained without effort. So the Scriptures must be searched if one will discover their hidden treasures, and even truths require prayer and thought before it reveals its full beauty and strength.

Aside from the daily lessons which God gives us from our morning reading, if we look for them earnestly, and we may be sure they are adapted to our needs for that day, we wish to call attention to the opportunities for service which arise from our contact with people on the way to or from business, or on the train, or in the performance of our daily duties. How often at the table conversation drags, and almost dies for lack of a fresh subject, and yet how seldom anyone ventures to introduce a religious topic, even where the majority of the people present are professing Christians.

Out of the Abundance of the Heart.

On the other hand, how refreshing it is to meet one who is evidently in the company of Peter and John, who said: "We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard." A gentleman overtook a stranger and invited him to ride. As he approached him he said to himself: "I wonder what the man is thinking about and what subject of conversation he will introduce. Surely it will be one of three things—the weather, the crops or the election." It was none of these. His first words after the salutations were: "How's religion down in your country?" The question startled the man a little by its directness, but it showed where the other's heart and hopes were, and led to a long and profitable conversation on spiritual things.

How much might be accomplished by each of us if our hearts were warm and glowing with love to Christ, and our minds on the alert to improve every opportunity that God sets before us. Instead of telling a dozen people tomorrow that it is a fine day, or that it looks like rain, suppose we give the weather a rest and try to talk about something more profitable. If your neighbor opens up the subject of war, ask him if he ever noticed that verse in Psalms where God says, "He maketh wars to cease unto the ends of the earth," or say: "Here is a verse which has helped me lately. Let me give it to you." If they open up on the weather and complain because the day is so cold or wet, meet their complaints by saying: "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." Try this on a dozen people the next rainy day. It comes, and watch the effect of it. It calls attention to the promise in Isaiah 55:10, that as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither until it has done its appointed work, so shall my word be that goeth out of my mouth; it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please. What an opportunity this gives one to talk on God's overruling Providence, and the certainty that his purpose will be fulfilled.

Refreshing in the Word.

If the day be hot and sultry, what more refreshing than the verse, "He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass; as showers that water the earth."—Ps. 72:6. Whatever the weather or political conditions may be, there is always some way of diverting attention to spiritual things if we will make a study of the fine art of religious conversation.

And just as a nursing mother eats both for herself and her child, so as we read the Bible, we should be on the lookout for truth which we can pass on to others. And as nurses in royal families are fed more carefully and bountifully because they supply life to the king's children, so we may be sure God will cause his word to dwell in us more richly, if he knows that we will pass it on to others.

It Has Its Price.

Whoever wants power must pay for it.—Emerson.

Pleasant Fields Of Holy Writ

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Fourth Quarter, Lesson IX. Nehemiah IV.—7-21. December 2, 1917.

Golden Text: The Lord is my helper, I will not fear what man shall do unto me. Hebrews XIII. 6. NEHEMIAH REBUILDS THE WALLS OF JERUSALEM.

Once more the Hebrews are in exile in large numbers in Egypt, though not in bondage, and harm is not likely to come to them while under the protection of the British Empire. The Turks have a strangle hold on Jerusalem. It is said that the ancient walls have been strengthened with modern cement and that the Turkish garrison is officered by German engineers. The Holy City is likely to suffer another siege, Gethsemane to be trodden by attacking troops and Hermon to echo the thunder of long range guns. History repeats itself and the page of current record is strangely like that of the Old Testament annals. * * * Nehemiah's diary modestly says he "came to Jerusalem." He said nothing to any one of the purpose of his coming or of the royal letters patent in his pocket. He did nothing but observe, record and think. Then he took a slow night ride about the city. There was moonlight enough for his purpose, not enough to betray him to the few stray people who were about. He noted the number and size of the breaches in the wall and how far the towers had been truncated and the gates barred and how much labor and material would be needed. When all data was in hand he called the natural leaders of the people together and said—not "I have come to put this city in a defensible condition" but "Ye see this distress that we are in, how Jerusalem lies waste and the gates thereof are burned with fire. Come! Let us build up the walls of Jerusalem that we be no more a reproach." Only then did he introduce the personal element and only so far as to say how good the hand of God had been upon him and finally the words the king had spoken. Led on so diplomatically was it, any wonder that the people cried: "Let us rise up and build!" * * * But never was a great national enterprise undertaken under more unfavorable circumstances. The laborers were few and comparatively inexperienced, the enemies many and exceedingly crafty. Instead of a clean site a heap of rubbish; conspiracy within, the city and threatening advances of the enemy. But Nehemiah was more than a match for his ominous and exacting environment. John Foster has said: "It is curious to see how space clears around a man of decisive spirit as he moves him toward freedom." The case in instance is an illustration. Such organizing and administrative ability as Nehemiah displayed has rarely been surpassed. He fairly hypnotized the people. Everybody was interested. There was a good-natured rivalry. Thoroughly aroused they stood ready to repel invasion. Whether they worked or stood guard their families were or stood guard behind them and in the more distant background were their houses and the temple so that they had a constant object lesson to remind them that the work in which they were engaged was for God and home and native land. In the incredible short space of fifty-two days the work was done. Happy Nehemiah! as on the evening of the last day he closed and barred the city gate. What joy to know that after the long exposure the House of God was safe. Thus terminated successfully a task which in its magnitude, difficulty and importance stands next to the building of the temple itself.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

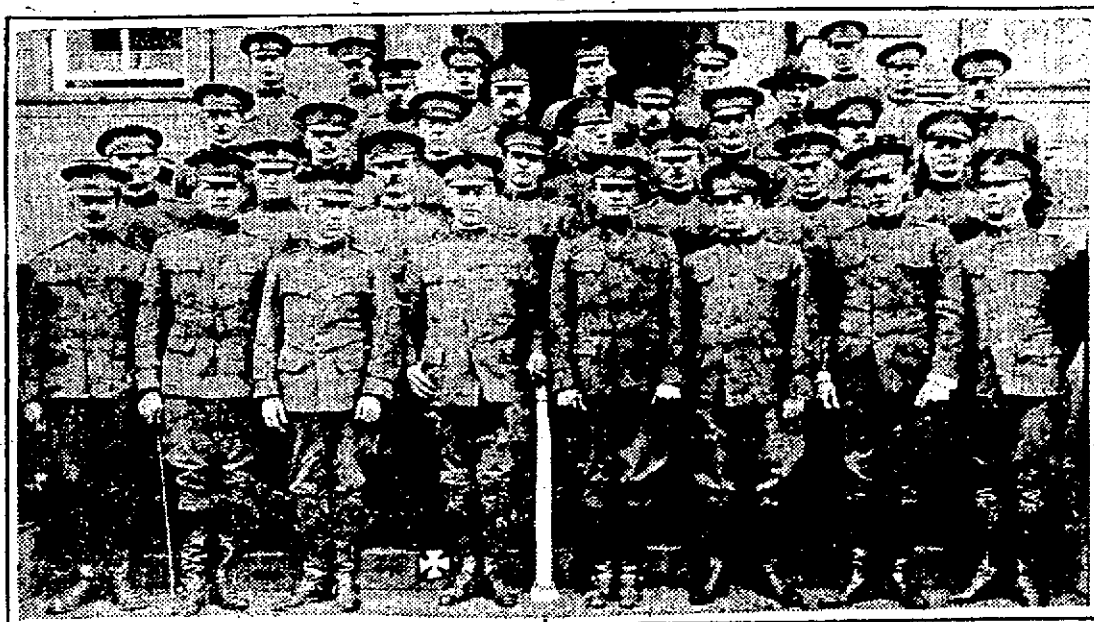

Josephus says of Nehemiah: "He was a man of good and righteous character and very ambitious to make his own nation happy and he hath left the walls of Jerusalem an eternal monument of himself." * * * There were slackers in Nehemiah's day. They were willing to see others toil and imperil their lives without their support, but to enjoy the security which the repaired wall and closed gate afforded. Cursed are the moral slackers who shrink in the ceaseless conflict against human wickedness. To a general who had skulked in his tent at Arque, Henry of Navarre cried: "Go hang thyself! We fight and you was not there!" * * * There is a jewel in the head of enmity as well as of adversity. One says sententiously that if the value of an enemy was only known he would be purchased with gold. Schiller says his friend shows him what he can do, his foe what he should do. * * * The city wall the temple built with twenty-one years of toil and sacrifice and all its priceless contents was absolutely defenseless from Bedouin incursions and the touch of sacrilegious and plundering hands. * * * The utility of prayer has a remarkable exemplification in the Book of Nehemiah. The undertaking of rebuilding the wall was begun, continued, and consummated in prayer. Nehemiah prayed four months before he so much as mentioned his matter to the king. His silent prayer in the very presence of the king is artlessly described: "So I prayed to the God of heaven." He prayed as the work continued and enemies ridiculed and threatened. * * * The aggressive Christian must be ready to endure ridicule. Sanballat and Tobiah dared a game of backdoor and shuttlecock behind the earshot of the inexperienced builders. They banded libels at their expense. "Ha, ha! how industrious! Will they finish the work in a day?" "The weight of a fox is enough to break down such a wall as that." Mockery is no new weapon. The Christian must just be impervious to it. * * * The advantage of thorough organization has a fine illustration in this book. The caption of the third chapter is very significant. "The names and order of them that builded the wall." Each family, order, and guild, from the high priest to the merchant, was given a specific portion to do. The laborers were armed and instructed. * * * The loneliness of Nehemiah is pathetic. The importance of his proposition was not appreciated.

Man and His Weight.

Between forty and fifty a man who allows his weight to remain high is running more danger of an early demise than he would run if he contracted typhoid fever. What is more, if he were stricken with that disease, his chance would be 10 per cent less than normal. A man who is thinner than the average, on the other hand, has less danger of dying in the decade than a man who tips the scales at the normal figure.

Weather Has Made History.

All through history, from classic times down to the present, the intervention of the weather has turned the tide of wars. No wonder that commanders, kings and nations used to pray for favorable weather when their fortunes were at stake. There was a time, both in pagan days and later under the Christian cycle, that no army went into battle without offering devout supplications for a fair day or a foul, as best suited their aims.

ARMY TEAMS DOWNED BY VARSITY SQUADS

Camp Sherman and Camp Funston Fall Down Under Attack of University Aggregations—

Jackies Win
Chicago fans of the number of ten thousand turned out yesterday to see the Jackies from the Great Lakes naval station walloped the army team from Fort Sheridan by a 27 to 0 score. The sailors, with an excellent record of football, used their ability to best advantage, and piled up a total of four touchdowns. The feature of the game was Erickson's ninety yard dash, for touchdown.

Ohio State wound up her season by a decisive victory over Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, Ohio, 28 to 0. The varsity had little trouble in passing and made big gains around the wings, playing an open game throughout. The army team was kept largely on the defensive.

Illinois trounced Camp Funston, also by a 27 to 0 score. Over twenty thousand fans watched Zupke's warriors trample on the soldiers, the day being ideal for football. The college team, which had an excellent record in the game and split the army line like paper in every period.

Marquette university ended its most successful season yesterday by defeating Wabash, 21 to 0. It was a hard contest and was played in a slow, cold, which detracted greatly from the speed of the game. Wabash threw a score into Marquette's column in the first period, but the Catholics recovered in time to save themselves.

The only game of interest in the west tomorrow will be the Camp Grant-Custer contest at Chicago, which should be an exciting, combative. Some ten thousand men from the Rockford camp are planning to attend. Camp Custer will also have a large number of rooters along.

TACTICS OF GIANTS DISLIKED BY TEAMS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Nov. 30.—The fruits of rowdy baseball are being served up to the Giants. The White Sox, who experienced the unsportsmanlike tactics of Artie Fletcher and Charlie Herzog when the two clubs met in the world's series, have refused to meet the Giants in a spring game at Chicago. The Detroit Tigers likewise have turned down an offer.

The Detroit refusal to participate in proposed spring games is directly to the floor of Charles Herzog and his determination to "ride" Ty Cobb when the teams were playing last year. The count of this kind of baseball is Herzog was a fighter on the field at Dallas, Tex. and another in a hotel after the game. Cobb left the Tigers and declared he would not play where it was necessary for him to use his fists as well as his head.

Cobb has partially been absolved from blame in his altercation with Herzog through the tactics of the giants' second baseman in the world's series. The tactics of the giants' side of this argument were treated to some of the Herzog roughhousing that series, when Charles undertook to take a ride on any of the White Sox sliding into second base. He hoped astride Buck Weaver, Harry Felsch and others as they went sliding into the sack.

It was so much fun that Artie Fletcher also tried it and added to his afternoon by craftily trying to trip White Sox runners when they sped by him on the way to third base. It was around these two players that the trouble circulated during the series, and which nearly led to a general fight between the teams as time approached for the final contest. And, by their action, they are deprived of this chance to exhibit their prowess in an exhibition series, and perhaps earn back some of the prestige they lost last fall.

Tricky baseball is nice to watch, but there were few fans either in Chicago or New York who approved the Fletcher-Herzog style. Clarence Rowland made the assertion that he hoped he never would have to send his White Sox again against such players as the Giants had proven themselves.

Glenn Warner, coach of the great Pittsburgh eleven and formerly mentor of the Carlisle Indians, has modified the method he had some years ago in developing a football team, and the Carlisle Braves were responsible for the chance of one phase of his system.

Remember Sammy Strang, former big league star? Baseball fans recall that he quit the diamond to take up grand opera singing and that it was predicted he would become a popular singer. Well, he's now Capt. Samuel Nicklin, U.S.A., and he's serving somewhere in France. Coming from a wealthy Chattanooga, Tenn., family with strong prejudices against professional athletes, Sammy took the name Strang and worked his way to the big leagues. While playing in ball he was also training his voice. When he quit the diamond and studied under great masters in Europe, when he returned to this country he took up coaching the West Point baseball squad simply for love of the sport. Then came the war and Samuel Strang, Nicklin, changed into the strife, dropping his operatic plans just when he was ready to cash in on his investment in his voice.

Freddie Welsh, who lost the world's lightweight title to Bennie Leonard, is clamoring for another match. Welsh, according to prize ring ethics, is entitled to consideration. He risks his title and accepted defeat manfully. It's a leading question whether he can defeat Leonard in a return battle, but that is not the point. It Welsh thinks he can whip Leonard he should receive the opportunity to fight. A popular champion and an excellent boxer, but he cannot afford to ignore a genuine challenge from Welsh or any other worthy foe.

"I'll never forget my first week at Carlisle," said Warner recently. "I coached as if I had been coached—taking advantage of the fact that players do not take back to the coach. The first week was over some of the best players had quit the team and did not show up for practice. I sought them out to locate the trouble. They said they did not like being cussed and tongue lashed so much. I reformed, and got them back on the team. It was a valuable lesson for me. I soon found that I could do my work without abusing or insulting my men."

It is understood that before New Year's another plan to alter the minor league map for redistributing the minor league map has been permanently abandoned. Powerful magnates are talking over the situation with the idea of framing another arrangement that may save the minor league from utter ruin. If the minors will listen to reason they soon will find a way to strengthen their circuits. It will be necessary to bring out the old and petty grievances if this task is to be accomplished. Early next month the new plan probably will be made public.

If the next army draft calls single men away from the major leagues it is probable that many veterans again will be seen in the big show. They will room for Hans Wagner, Napoleon Lejole, Johnny Evers, Hans Lobert, Sam Crawford, Eddie Plank, Fred Snodgrass, Chief Meyers, Mike Mowbray, Ray Keating, Ed Swenney, George McBride, Jim Leavelle, Frank Schulte and many other old timers who have been crowded out of fast company by ambitious youngsters. In fact, players more than 31 years old will be in general demand.

Contributors to the funds for athletic equipment for the soldier boys will be interested to learn that every bit of this equipment will go right along with the Sammies when they are ordered to the front. Each company has one corporal who is responsible for every boxing glove, every baseball bat, every medicine ball, every pair of mitts in the athletic equipment. He checks up the supply each night and then locks it in a large box provided for this purpose. And the Sammies had almost no room to leave their rags in this country as their sports equipment.

MILD WEATHER HOLDS DOWN DEER SLAUGHTER
Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 30.—Mild weather of the last week held down the slaughter of deer in north Wisconsin woods considerably, according to hunting guides and hunters. The deer season closed today.

Although the number of deer killed by hunters will mount into thousands, many returned disappointed. Heavy snow, which would have increased the slaughter in the view of the "old timers."

There are many indications, according to trappers and Indians, that the winter will be mild and of comparatively short duration. The prediction is upheld in the fact that sap is yet flowing freely in maples, the bark is loose on trees and animal pelt is thin.

CAMP GRANT BOYS HAVE SUFFICIENT STRENUOUS EXERCISE

Camp Grant, 331st Machine Gun Battalion. It was their first real test of endurance and they passed with flying colors. That is what can be said of the men of the 331st Machine Gun Battalion in regard to their hike to the range on Friday. The distance is a little over five miles, over bad roads and many hills to climb, but the men went through the hike in perfect form and not a man was forced to drop out.

It was a hard day for the men and there were many weary fellows in the battalion Friday evening, but they all claim that it is the kind of work they have to have to develop them and not one of them was heard to kick. The men arose at 5 o'clock in the morning and from then until late in the afternoon they were kept busy. After breakfast in the barracks the companies formed in front of the machine gunners and at 8:30 o'clock the adjutant gave the call and the march was on.

Maj. A. F. Dannemiller rode at the head of the battalion and all of the other officers walked only on order. The march was taken after the men left the camp. The men were allowed to fall out and rest for five minutes after they had walked for about one-half hour.

It was a strange experience for some of the men to go on the range, as there are several fellows in the battalion who had never shot a rifle and hadn't the faintest idea what kind of a machine gun made. But after reaching the range the crack of the rifle and the bang of the machine gun soon became music to the ears and they went about their work as if they had been around machine guns all their lives.

After reaching the range the men were allowed to rest a few moments and then the companies were put up into several squads and set at different things. Some of the squads gathered wood for the kitchen, others dug holes for the field ranges, and the rest gathered on the field and played games. During the progress of the march Captain Elkins of Co. D and Captain L. R. Foote of Co. C had quite a heated argument as to which company had the best runners. The result was that a relay race was started and run. The assertion that we had the best runners proved true. It was a wonderful run from start to finish, and Co. C owes many thanks to the corporal Elkins and Sergeant Thomas Cronin for it was these men who won the race for Co. C.

At 10:00 o'clock the battalion was again assembled and from then until noon the men watched their officers working with the machine guns. When it comes to shooting, the men all claim that the officers of the battalion sure have eagle eyes. There was no score kept of the shooting, but for the most part the officers hit the target after the shooting had subsided, would convince him that the officers can hit the bull's eye almost every time.

At 12 o'clock the mess call was sounded and from then on all after lunch the men were contented themselves with eating, and if Uncle Sam could have seen the way the men ate he would certainly have to call for some fast days in the army. The men were treated to a real dinner, consisting of roast beef, mashed potatoes, stewed tomatoes, bread and butter, coffee, and cornstarch pudding.

After dinner the big event of the day was staged. A football game between eleven from companies B and C was staged. Co. C's men were led by Sergeant Thomas Cronin, a former Dubuque college star, and were eleven by lieutenant, Smith, also a player of note. After battling back and forth for about twenty minutes the game was called, each side having one touchdown to its credit. Co. C's one touchdown was on a long run touchdown was on a long run brought the ball over. Co. B was aided a great deal in getting its touchdown by the poor playing of a couple of men of Co. C. Lieutenant Smith made four straight forward passes for a total of ninety yards and each one around the same end. These two teams are planning on engaging in another battle, and with some new men in the line Co. C ought to have a walkaway.

When the football game was over the men were taken into the field and given about an hour's drilling. The drilling brought out a new and excellent drill under the command of Lieut. Maher and was composed of Sergeants Cunningham, Smith and McIntosh, Corporals C. Cunningham and Frank Koerber. This drill was executed by the movements was wonderful. They finally persuaded Mess Sgt. Hendrickson to join them; that is the end of the squad.

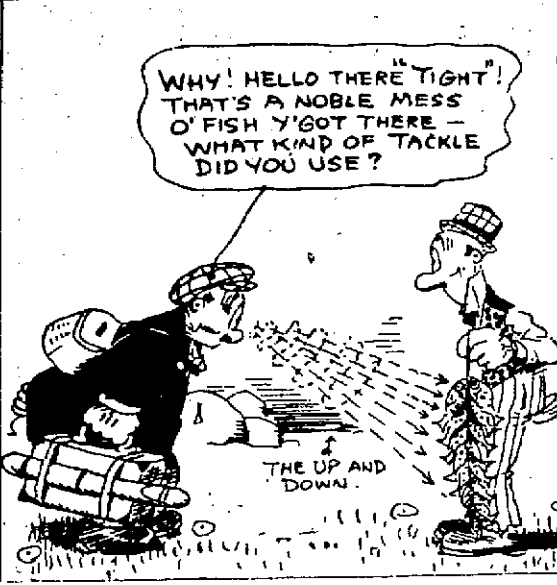

At 3 o'clock the men started on the return trip and when they reached their respective barracks and were dismissed they were a weary but happy bunch.

Owing to a letter received this morning from a certain young lady in Beloit, that she couldn't find enough news in the Camp Grant columns about the Beloit boys, we will endeavor to publish more from now on. The boys from the Gateway city won't perform any stunts how are we going to write about them.

Corporal Ray Shute of Beloit is anxiously waiting for his brother to join him and numbers of Co. C are just as anxious. With the Shute twins in the organization the company will have another feature act for its Wednesday evening entertainment.

Many of Howard Myhr's old friends from Janesville are in camp, and on reading the Beloit Daily News the other evening they read that he was coming to join them. They are anxiously waiting the arrival of "Johnny."

Privates Earl Garbutt, Scotty Johnstone and James Quinn, accompanied by Privates Joyce and the Kennedy brothers, attended the dance in Janesville Saturday evening. They all claim

PROTECTION PLANNED FOR POTATO BUYERS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Nov. 30.—Protecting the Wisconsin housewives against frost damaged or rotten potatoes is a work which has been taken up by George J. Weigle, state dairy and food commissioner. He has started a campaign to educate the people of the state to take action in cases where fraud is suspected, that the waste resulting from the purchase of unusable potatoes may be eliminated, though just at present to a lesser degree, he says.

The present high prices are tempting many people to substitute cheaper products," said Mr. Weigle. "Large quantities of potatoes throughout Wisconsin this fall were frost-bitten. Complaints from every section of the state show the prevalence of this condition. It does not ruin them for use as stock feed, but it does for human consumption. Housewives should be especially alert to prevent imposition. It is, of course, impossible for the inspectors of my department to cover the whole field. For that reason we welcome always information from any source and ask the cooperation of the public."

Whenever supplies such as potatoes are bought, it is urged, the purchaser should get a guarantee of the name of the seller so that action may be started in case of misrepresentation. Attention of the wholesalers and dealers is called to the fact that state laws forbid the shipment of frost-bitten or rotten potatoes and provide penalties for misrepresentation of the quality of goods sold.

ELKHORN
Elkhorn, Nov. 28.—Judge Lyon is in Chicago for a few days, attending to matters of national importance. He is expected to return to Elkhorn on Monday. He is an active member of the Elkhorn Elks club and is a member of the Elkhorn Elks club.

Major Yates, who has fought in the trenches, is instructing the students at the Northwestern Military Academy, Lake Geneva, in that branch of military service. The major, Col. Davidson were guests of the Elkhorn Booster club last night, and both made instructive addresses.

There was a shooting affair at McPherson station this week, but Walworth county can hardly boast of either of the participants. Paul Battles of Milwaukee, bought a house and moved to Mayhew. Then he cut off his house to Arthur Greeter of Chicago. It was at the time of the exchange of property that the mix-up occurred. Both used their guns and the Chicago man did the greatest execution for Battles is in Milwaukee hospital with four bullet wounds, while Greeter is in Mayhew with only one bullet mark. Greeter will recover, but Battles' chances are against him.

County Agent Oldham shipped in seed potatoes by the carload and now we have tubers to sell. Next year seed corn will be a crying need and Mr. Oldham is securing the most fortunate parts of the county for a supply. If he succeeds as well with the corn as he did with the potatoes, we farmers will swear by him until we are again in need.

M. G. Jeffris addressed two patriotic meetings in this week; the first one in Genoa Junction last night and the other in Elkhorn tonight. Max is popular in Walworth county and he handles his patriotic work only a red-blooded, patriotic American can.

The Phoenix brothers came from New York to Walworth county in an early day. They were men of industry and they had much to do with the county's early history and were the founders of the city of Delavan. J. J. Phoenix descended from these pioneers and comes rightfully by his good integrity. He is a successful manufacturer and business man and now they are talking about him for congress, and if he goes into the race there will be no molasses-coating. Mr. Phoenix is an American always and never straddles. He has the courage of his convictions and is no trimmer. He is a politician in the higher sense of the word. By the way, the Ragoes are getting some pretty hard frosts these days even from his erstwhile friends, and it does seem that only his proverbial good luck can save him, for he imitates humanity so abominably.

The week has brought forth its usual train of accidents. An automobile plunked off a culvert north of town and one of the occupants, her arm broken, our good friend Cub Hubbard fell into a nine-foot cellar at the creamery and narrowly escaped with his life, while Matt Nelson is ashamed and humiliated by having been run over by a Ford. But fortunately all the unfortunate are improving.

The annual school board convention was held at the court house this week, William Henry Shaver to the contrary notwithstanding.

Hon. Riley S. Young, county coal commissioner, called the dealers to Elkhorn last Wednesday. They went over the situation locally and found everything in good shape except in Troy Center and Lyons, and efforts will be concentrated in getting a supply for the dealers in those two places.

Big Charlie Wiswell is still a very sick man. Which reminds us that "the race is not always to the swift nor the battle to the strong," for Charlie to all appearances is a giant. But we are all hoping that he will soon be himself again.

It is the privilege of the great American citizen to stand up and howl about being "disfranchised," but personally we have no patience with the unscrupulous politicians who permit his prejudices to outrun his patriotism and for the mere hope of politi-

Building Human Efficiency
MAN NEEDS A BALANCED RATION

By P. G. HOLDEN.
FEEDING the family is as important as feeding the animals. Food whether it be for man or animal, has two functions to perform: First, to build up the body and repair wasted tissue. Second, to furnish energy for the production of heat and motion.

By observing a few general suggestions it is possible to keep a diet well enough balanced for practical purposes. Both the growth of the body and its working capacity are dependent upon the amount and kind of food we eat. This should be borne in mind in those days when our country needs our best efforts and every ounce of food must be utilized to the utmost.

People must have protein substances to build up muscles and tissue. The protein is secured mainly from meats, eggs, milk and cheese, or from legumes and cereals.

The legumes and cereals have such a large per cent of starches and sugars that if we were to depend entirely upon vegetables for our protein we would eat too much of the starches and sugar. Furthermore, the vegetable protein is not so easily digested as that found in animal food. For these reasons it is usually thought best for us to eat a mixed diet and secure a considerable part of our protein from meats, eggs, milk and cheese.

The best energy-producing foods are sugars and starches in cereals and vegetables. Corn, wheat, potatoes and rice should make up a large part of our diet. The fats are used in the same way as the sugars and starches, but have a much higher energy and fuel value and should be taken in much smaller quantities.

Fat is secured from butter, oils, olives, fat meats, nuts, etc. Cereals and vegetables contain a small quantity of fat.

Fruits, green vegetables and relishes furnish bulk, juiciness, flavor and the needed mineral element.

Water helps to dissolve and distribute the foods in the body and carries off the waste material.

A great deal of water is supplied to us through food material, such as milk and green vegetables, but this is not a sufficient amount. People should drink a great deal of water besides that consumed with meals.

cal advancement would plunge our state into a political vortex at a time when the fate of the world hangs in the balance. That's rather a long sentence, but we mean every word of it.

HAVE JOYOUS WELCOME FOR RETURNING TROOPS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cardiff, Wales, Oct. 30.—An appropriate way of welcoming the men who return on leave from the front has been adopted by South Wales towns and villages. The news that a soldier from that neighborhood is on his way home is a signal for the whole town, from the main streets to the most dingy street in the district of occupying villages, to blossom into a gorgeous display of flags and bunting. Lamp posts are transformed into Venetian masts, the flags of all the allies flutter from cottage windows and a grand banner inscribed "Welcome home" spans the street opposite the homecoming hero's house.

Workshop Is Useful.
A convenient building to have on practically any small country or suburban estate is a small structure fitted up with a carpenter's bench and tool closet, with a bin for coal, a recess for wood and a small room fitted up for the storage of household goods or garden necessities.

Sometimes a man'll switch to a cheaper brand o' cigars, but his wife generally does all the economizin'. Tipton Bud was successfully operated on yesterday by a corn shredder.
